Introducing a new t-shirt made of 100% recycled fabric that is sustainable and responsibly sourced. The special part about this new tee is that it is never re-dyed and is made of reclaimed material that would have ended up in a landfill. By eliminating the water-intensive dyeing process and the need to produce new raw materials saves the equivalent of skipping six weeks of showers or taking 5.87 miles off of someone's daily commute.

The District Re-Tee is composed of 60 percent recycled cotton scraps and 40 percent recycled polyester known as rPET, which is derived from used items like plastic bottles. Each tee's color comes from its original, stringently-sorted cotton scraps, and is blended with recycled polyester yarn, so it never has to be re-dyed. This process makes for a soft, comfortable and high-quality tee.

The tees come in a crew neck and women's v-neck style and offer 8 color choices including black, ruby red, maize yellow, blue heather, charcoal heather, deep brown heather, heathered navy, and light heather grey. They also offer a tag free label and sizes range from XS to 4XL.

Doing good for the planet feels as good on the inside as it does on the outside!
